Investment Weekly

Commentary and Statistics

- Stock markets sustained losses over a week of high volatility, succumbing to escalating trade tensions as the Trump administration threatened more tariffs on Chinese goods and European cars. Stocks of agricultural firms, automakers and industrial companies took the hardest hits. The Dow Jones Industrial Average marked its longest string of down days in more than a year.
- Oil prices and oil company shares rose after OPEC agreed to increase production by less than expected. In contrast, gold prices fell for the week, a sign that investors might be hoping a trade war would not materialize. The 10-year U.S. Treasury yield fell to 2.86% before closing the week at 2.89%.
- The NAHB housing market index of homebuilder sentiment declined to 68 in June from 70 in May. The NAHB attributed the decline to higher homebuilding costs, a result of tariffs on Canadian lumber.
- U.S. existing home sales declined 0.4% percent in May to an annual rate of 5.43 million units, down from a rate of 5.45 million in April. Economists had expected a 1.5% increase to 5.52 million.
- U.S. housing starts jumped 5% in May to an annualized rate of 1.35 million units, following a 3.1% drop in April. Starts hit their highest rate since July 2007, mainly on a rebound of multi-family construction.
- The IHS Markit Flash U.S. Composite Purchasing Managers Index (PMI) registered 56.0 in June, a slight decline from May. Economists took the June reading as a signal that manufacturing and service business activities continue to expand at one the fastest rates in recent years.

- The IHS Markit Eurozone Composite PMI rose from 54.1 in May to 54.8 in June. While better than the 18-month low seen in May, the June reading underscored the tepid pace of business activity growth so far in 2018. At the same time, eurozone consumer confidence dropped to -0.5 in June, its lowest reading since last October.
- The IHS Markit/Nikkei Japan Manufacturing PMI rose to 53.1 in June from 52.8 in May. Manufacturing expanded at a faster pace than the previous month but export orders contracted for the first time in almost two years.

Past performance does not guarantee future results.

<sup>1</sup>As of 03/31/18. Voya Investment Management assets are calculated on a market value basis and include proprietary insurance general account assets of $87 billion. <sup>2</sup>Metrics presented use pre-determined criteria to measure each individual investment product based on its ability to either A) rank above the median of its peer category; or B) outperform its benchmark index on a gross-of-fees basis. Generally speaking, the results for unconstrained, fully-active investment products were based on relevant peer category rankings while those of "enhanced index", rules-based, risk-constrained, or client-specific investment products were based on benchmark-relative performance. Metrics are calculated on an annualized basis and includes mutual funds as well as pooled and separately-managed institutional portfolios that fall within our traditional (long-only) commercial book of business that remain open as of 03/31/18. If terminated and other accounts had been included, results may have differed from that shown. Source of performance returns and peer medians is Voya Investment Management but is based in part on data from Morningstar (mutual funds) and eVestment (institutional composites). Further detailed information regarding these calculations is available upon request. <sup>3</sup>Metrics are based on observations of rolling 5-year or 7-year annualized returns over the last 30 months, calculated on an annualized, gross-of-fees basis, and includes mutual funds as well as pooled and separately-managed institutional portfolios that fall within our traditional long-only commercial book of business that remain open as of 03/31/18. If terminated and other accounts had been included, results may have differed from that shown. Source of performance returns is Voya Investment Management, and further detailed information regarding these calculations is available upon request.
