Commentary and Statistics

- U.S. equities along with gold experienced a flat week as oil bumped up. The 10-year U.S. Treasury yield closed at approximately 2.33%.
- Oil finished the week higher after a choppy ride. This came despite a headline from Reuters suggesting that both OPEC (Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries) and allied non-OPEC sources are considering extending their production-cut agreement an additional nine months when they meet on May 25 – a six-month extension was previously anticipated.
- Independent centrist Emmanuel Macron won France's presidential election, defeating far-right National Front candidate Marine LePen. While Macron's win has been viewed as the most favorable outcome for France and the Eurozone outlook, market reaction was fairly muted given that the result was widely expected.
- While Washington is garnering headlines with regards to healthcare and the legislative agenda, earnings season for Q1 is winding down and with 90% of the S&P 500 companies reporting, earnings growth is 14.5%, the best since the third quarter of 2011.
- A rebound in retail sales and a leap in consumer sentiment, as measured by the University of Michigan confidence gauge, and a 28-year low in initial jobless claims bolsters the case for a pickup in GDP in Q2. The Fed's job openings and labor turnover survey (JOLTS) showed job openings slightly higher, edging up to 5.743 million to hit its highest mark since July 2016. The hire and quits rates remained unchanged.
- Though inflation ticked up in April the 0.1% increase in Core CPI was lighter than expected, justifying the case for gradual rate increases. On the other hand, Kansas City Federal Reserve President Esther George commented that the 4.4%

Generally speaking, the results for unconstrained, fully-active investment products were based on relevant peer category rankings while those of "enhanced index", rules-based, risk-constrained, or client-specific investment products were based on benchmark-relative performance. Metrics are calculated on an annualized basis and includes mutual funds as well as pooled and separately-managed institutional portfolios that fall within our traditional (long-only) commercial book of business that remain open as of 03/31/17. If terminated and other accounts had been included, results may have differed from that shown. ³ Metrics are based on observations of rolling 3-year annualized returns over the last 30 months, calculated on an annualized, gross-of-fees basis, and includes mutual funds as well as pooled and separately-managed institutional portfolios that fall within our traditional long-only commercial book of business that remain open as of 03/31/17.
