Commentary and Statistics

- Stocks staged an impressive rally as the Dow Jones Industrial Average and the S&P 500 posted fresh highs. Markets ignored shenanigans from North Korea, which fired another missile over Japan; however, U.K. stocks slipped after a bomb exploded on a London subway. Oil prices surged more than 4% on the week, whereas gold retreated. Prices of U.S. Treasuries fell; the 10-year yield rose to 2.20%.
- U.S. consumer prices rebounded 0.4% in August, their biggest jump since January. The news lent support to the Fed view that softer inflation this year would prove transitory, and might reassure FOMC members as they meet next week to consider raising interest rates. On the other hand, inflation numbers in coming months are likely to be skewed by hurricane effects, making it difficult to distinguish underlying trends from temporary impacts.
- Americans' average weekly earnings fell 0.6% in August, a sign that the economy still isn't so vigorous. Hourly earnings rose but higher inflation more than offset the gain and the average workweek declined.
- U.S. retail sales decreased by 0.2% in August, after July gains were revised down from 0.6% to 0.3% and after falling in June. The headline figure was dragged down by a drop in auto sales. Most categories were soft but gasoline sales rose 2.5%, reflecting a price surge as Texas refineries shut down ahead of Hurricane Harvey.
- U.S. industrial production dropped 0.9% in August, its biggest monthly decline since May 2009. The Fed attributed most of the decline to Hurricane Harvey, which depressed oil drilling, petroleum refining and other industrial activity. Capacity utilization also fell to 76.1% in August; economists had expected 76.8%.

Today, we are proud to manage more than $224 billion in assets for investors.¹

84% of our assets outperformed their benchmark on a 5-year basis.²

87% of our assets outperformed their benchmark or peer median on a 5-year basis.³

85% of the time our portfolios outperformed their benchmark on a rolling 3-year basis.⁴

Past performance does not guarantee future results.

¹ As of 06/30/17, Voya IM assets of $224 billion include proprietary insurance general account assets of $90 billion calculated on a market value basis. Voya IM assets, as reported in Voya Financial, Inc. SEC filings, include general account assets valued on a statutory book value basis and total approximately $217 billion. ² Above benchmark metrics are calculated on an annualized, gross-of-fees basis and include mutual funds as well as pooled and separately-managed institutional portfolios that fall within our traditional (long-only) commercial book of business that remain open as of 06/30/17. If terminated and other non-discretionary and special purpose accounts had been included, results may have differed from that shown. ³ Metrics presented use pre-determined criteria to measure each individual investment product based on its ability to either A) rank above the median of its peer category; or B) outperform its benchmark index on a gross-of-fees basis. Generally speaking, the results for unconstrained, fully-active investment products were based on relevant peer category rankings while those of "enhanced index", rules-based, risk-constrained, or client-specific investment products were based on benchmark-relative performance. Metrics are calculated on an annualized basis and includes mutual funds as well as pooled and separately-managed institutional portfolios that fall within our traditional (long-only) commercial book of business that remain open as of 06/30/17. If terminated and other accounts had been included, results may have differed from that shown. ⁴ Metrics are based on observations of rolling 3-year annualized returns over the last 30 months, calculated on an annualized, gross-of-fees basis, and includes mutual funds as well as pooled and separately-managed institutional portfolios that fall within our traditional long-only commercial book of business that remain open as of 06/30/17. If terminated and other accounts had been included, results may have differed from that shown. Source of performance returns and peer medians is Voya Investment Management but is based in part on data from Morningstar (mutual funds) and eVestment (institutional composites).
